PART-TIME WORKING POLICY

Issued December 2019 • Reviewed December 2021

PURPOSE

The purpose of this policy is to provide the part-time employees with the procedures and clauses needed to understand the work conditions and the service agreement.

RESPONSIBILITY

It is the responsibility of the direct manager and the Personnel team to make sure the policy is adhered to.

SCOPE

This policy applies to ad-hoc personnel contracted to carry out defined on-premise assignments or to provide a service that is temporal in nature, to Nagwa.

POLICY

1. Part-timers should not carry any expectation of, or imply any right to extension, renewal or conversion to any other type of appointment. The contract expires according to its terms, without notice or indemnity. The contract may be renewed by mutual agreement. Efforts will be made to give reasonable notice of extension or renewal.
2. Part-timers are bound by our internal Code of Conduct, including our Dress Code and our Harassment and Sexual Harassment policies. Failure to abide by them shall lead to appropriate administrative or disciplinary action which may result in termination of the contract.
3. Part-timers shall not undertake supervisory functions over staff members; representative functions for Nagwa; or functions that are explicitly reserved for staff members under the Nagwa financial regulations or rules.
4. All intellectual property rights related to the assignments or services performed by the part-timer during the contract belongs and is assigned to Nagwa. Part-timers shall keep confidential the business secrets and information made available or known to him or her during the term of the assignment.
5. Part-timers carry out their assignments for 8 hours per day, including a one-hour break. They are compensated monthly based on the actual days delivered and following a daily rate. The daily rate shall be specified in the contract and is equivalent to the monthly net amount divided by 20. While the hourly rate is equivalent to the daily rate divided by 7.
6. Missed hours are deducted from the part-timer's salary at 18% from the agreed daily rate.
7. Part-timers are not entitled to claim any compensation or increase other than the agreed upon fees. Payments shall be made at the end of each calendar month upon certification from the supervisor of the actual number of days delivered and the performance of the assigned tasks. The gross salary is taxable according to the Egyptian Labor Law.
8. Part-timers are entitled to nursery and transportation benefits according to the terms specially defined for them. These benefits will be partially subsidized. This varies based on the actual number of days that are monthly delivered by a part-timer.
9. Part-timers are not entitled to sick, annual or any other type of leave. They are also not provided with medical, health insurance or any other benefit available to employees or under Egyptian Labor Law.
10. The part-time contract may be terminated by the part-timer upon written notice of two weeks. Nagwa may terminate the contract without indemnity at any moment upon verbal or written notice.